PRESENTED BY BERKELEY HUMANE VACCINE CLINIC REQUEST FORM: FELINE

	VACCINE	FEE
<input type="checkbox"/>	Core Vaccine - FVRCP (Panleukopenia, Upper Respiratory) This core vaccination is a must for every cat and is considered a core vaccine. This means that, because panleukopenia (also known as feline distemper) is a serious, highly contagious disease with a high death rate, all cats should be protected. This vaccine also protects against other airborne viruses that cause respiratory infections.	$15
<input type="checkbox"/>	Rabies California has seen cases of rabies in both domestic and wild animals and remains a rabies endemic state. All dogs are required by California law to have a rabies vaccine and it is highly recommended for cats.	$15
<input type="checkbox"/>	Dewormer Treatment Roundworms and tapeworms are common and can cause gastrointestinal problems. Cats should receive deworming treatments as part of general wellness.	$20
<input type="checkbox"/>	FIV/FeLV Combo Test A test for feline immunodeficiency virus (FIV) and feline leukemia (FeLV). FIV can compromise a cat's immune system and leave them vulnerable to other diseases and illness. FeLV is a contagious disease that results in death.	$20
<input type="checkbox"/>	Flea Prevention Monthly flea prevention is critical to prevent infestations and minimize disease and/or skin conditions caused by the common flea.	One (1) Month - Single Dose, based on weight: $15-20 Six (6) Month Supply, based on weight: $80-90
